Selected Writings of Li Shenzhi

Son of a merchant family, Li received a Western-style education from Yenching University in Beijing, graduating with a degree in economics before joining Mao's Communist movement in 1948. In the early 1950's, Li was foreign policy advisor to Premier Zhou Enlai, contributing to and promoting the moderate "Bandung Line" then being pursued. In 1957, his appeal to the government leadership for policies leading to "greater democracy" and liberalism led to his being labeled a "rightist" (one who criticized the Chinese Communist Party). His exile from the academic and political worlds lasted until the late 1970's, when he again served as foreign policy advisor, this time to Deng Xiaoping and Zhao Ziyang, traveling to the United States with Deng on his historic 1979 trip. Long a proponent for China's engagement with the United States, Li was the founding father of American studies in China, setting up the Institute of American Studies at the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences in 1981 and founding the Chinese Association for American Studies in 1988.

These selections were translated at the David Lam Centre for International Communication at Simon Fraser University in British Columbia, Canada. Although Li Shenzhi wrote these pieces in a relatively short period of time (between 1991 and 2002), they span centuries of history; present a worldwide view of cultural, social, and political differences; and feature glimpses of the possibilities for a truly free and democratic People's Republic of China.
