Teaching Your Teen to Drive Harold A. Smith

This book is designed to help inexperienced and nervous parents who realize they must provide 50 hours of daylight and 10 hours of night driving in the family car. It can be a dangerous business even if you consider yourself a good driver but you have no instructor's brake in your car.

- Your own driving will improve as you take your teen through these maneuvers!
- Your teen will stand a much better chance of passing his/her driver test at DMV if you follow my recommendations.

Take it easy and don't rush things. Good luck to you...you can do it!

About the author:

Harold Smith received his B.A. and MA from San Jose State and was a teacher with San Jose Unified Schools from 1961 through 2000. He began teaching driving in 1964.

After his retirement in 2000 he established a successful driver training business, Driver Training Services, in Santa Cruz, Watsonville and surrounding areas. He was also helpful with varying problems of numerous elderly drivers.

Harold survives in Santa Cruz, California.
