Reasoning About God, Man and Evil M. Nick Keehus

This book was designed to stimulate the minds of those who are interested in ultimate issues. It is primarily an introductory work in support of theism with highlights of Christian theism. Three main topics are discussed: 1) Arguments for the existence and personhood of God; 2) The folly of man, diversion, radical skepticism, knowledge relativism and moral relativism; and 3) God and the problem(s) of evil. Also, this book aims to communicate philosophical truths, logic, theology and science by means of a dialogue between an agnostic sociologist and a philosophical apologist, both of whom are graduate students in their respective fields.
