Walton was commissioned by Granada Television and delivered “Granada Prelude, Call Signs, and End Music” in 1962. The music was never used by Granada and the piece was turned over to Gilbert Vinter to adapt the prelude as “March for Concert Band” in which configuration it was recorded, transmitted at the beginning of each day’s broadcast from 1965 until 1973, and eventually published. The work features stretches of piano or pianissimo scoring allowing announcements to be superimposed. Walton also includes a "big tune" similar to ones found in Crown Imperial, Orb and Sceptre, and the Spitfire Prelude. The orchestral version was recorded in 1991 by the London Philharmonic led by Bryden Thomson and the Scots Guard Band led by Major R.J. Owen recorded the band version in 2002.
