Time Will Tell - An Easter Play Kathleen Morris

TIME WILL TELL is a play about two teenage girls who travel back in time to witness the crucifixion of Jesus Christ first hand. It is a unique way of telling the Easter story, revealing a message of love, hope, and forgiveness. It will truly bring a personal touch to the crucifixion for young and old. This Easter play was performed by a large Church in Saskatchewan, Canada and was a complete success! The audience loved it and the cast received many rave reviews. The message was outstanding and spoke to young and old. It's easy to perform with a big or small congregation and can incorporate a minimal cast or a large one. Very powerful Easter drama for teens as well as adults! From the Author I wrote and performed this play myself, with a full cast. It has been tried and tested with an audience and has a powerful Easter message. It can be used as an evangelism tool and specifically speaks to teens but can be effective for any ministry. I was asked to perform it for prison ministries as well as my home church. One of the characters in the play lives on the street so the play can speak to those who may be incarcerated or runaways. I hope that anyone who purchases this play will find blessings through its production and many lives will be won to Christ in the process!
